Prior to that, he worked at NBCUniversal in a progression of sales leadership roles for both legacy and advanced marketplace properties including NBCU Hispanic/Telemundo Media, NBC News, and Audience Studio, the first-mover application of data-driven advanced audience sales of TV/premium video including optimized national linear TV, addressable VOD and OTT, programmatic TV initiative, and programmatic digital, most recently serving as Executive Vice President, Advertising Sales.

He spent the first years of his media career on the agency side with stints at NW Ayer, Campbell-Milthun, J. Walter Thompson and Time Buying Services, Baker Hill Media Services, GM Mediaworks, and ultimately GM Planworks and Starcom, where he served as President, Media Investment/Activation, leading investment for TV, digital, audio, OOH and print for all Starcom clients including General Motors, Samsung, Allstate, Kellogg, Bank of America, Hallmark and Best Buy.

Rosen holds a J.D. degree from Fordham University School of Law, and a Bachelor of Science degree in Communications from Cornell University.

Commenting on the new addition to the team, NCM Senior Vice President and Chief Revenue Officer Scott Felenstein said, "As U.S. movie theaters reopen their doors and gear up for the first blockbuster of the fall season – Christopher Nolan's Tenet – NCM is working to re-connect brands with the magic of movies on the big screen as young, cord-cutting movie fans grow tired of at-home streaming options. I am thrilled that Mike is joining the team, as his media knowledge, stellar reputation and client relationships are unmatched in the industry. He brings a fresh new perspective to NCM that will help our ad partners find new ways to reach movie audiences anytime and anywhere with our Noovie big screen pre-show and digital products. And, I know Mike is as excited to get back to the movies as I am!"
